Dear INSERT NAME:

The purpose of this letter is to advise you of your revised relocation entitlement. On INSERT DATE a representative of the AGENCY provided you with your relocation entitlement letter. You have agreed to a purchase price which is more than the original amount offered to you. Based on this information, we have to make an adjustment to your Price Differential.

Revised Price Differential Entitlement

As a result of final compensation in the amount of $INSERT ADDMIN SETTLEMENT, your Price Differential payment is reduced to $INSERT REVISED PRICE DIFFERENTIAL.

Incidental Purchase Expenses & Increased Mortgage Interest Payment

You may still be reimbursed for certain other incidental purchase expenses incurred with the purchase of your replacement dwelling. Reimbursable expenses associated with the purchase may include certain eligible closing costs and an increased mortgage interest payment.

All other entitlement, claim, assurance and appeal information provided in your original entitlement letter, dated INSERT DATE, remain the same.

If you decide not to purchase a replacement dwelling and elect to rent instead, you may be eligible for a rental assistance payment. Please call me if you would like to rent so that I can compute the rent supplement amount.

As previously stated, the purpose of this letter is to advise you of your revised entitlement.
